

Declarations of interest form (advisory committees)

Instructions

The purpose of this form is to give NICE information about your interests that could be seen as relevant to the work of the NICE advisory committee you are currently, or seeking to be, involved with.

Interests can arise from professional or personal activities and include employment and income (outside of the NHS or public sector), speaking engagements, shareholdings, publications and research, and membership of professional or voluntary organisations.

Interests that are not relevant or could not be seen to be relevant to the committee's work do not need to be declared. For example, membership of sports and recreation societies, positions in local community groups, and shareholdings in companies unrelated to NICE's work.

You are responsible for the accuracy and completeness of the form and are encouraged to fully disclose any interests. Not declaring a relevant interest could lead to disqualification from membership of the committee.

The declaration should cover all current interests and any from the last 12 months.

Please also declare any new interests that are not currently held but will arise during involvement with the committee (for example, a new research project).

Please include all interests relevant or potentially relevant to the committee's work.

Before completing the form please ensure you read NICE's policy on declaring and managing interests. There is also a helpful FAQs on the committee vacancies page.
